

Contents

Introduction

I. TEACHING JUDAISM TO SECULAR JEWS: WHAT ARE THE GOALS?

Yaakov Malkin

Jewish Studies for Secular Jews

Immanuel Etkes

The Goals of Secular Jewish Education

Eliezer Schweid

The Culture and Religion of Israel: What to Teach

Rachel Elijor

"A Window Shalt Thou Make to the Ark": Language, Memory and Culture as a Bridge between the Secular Reader and the Jewish "Library"

II. THE RELEVANCE OF THE JEWISH CALENDAR TO THE CONTEMPORARY SECULAR JEW

Arye Ben-Gurion

Emphases in Festival Education for Schools, Families and Communities

Eliezer Schweid

The Festival as a Joint Cultural Expression of Religious and Secular Jews

Naftali Rothenberg

Time as a Contemporary Challenge: A Panel Discussion

III. ISRAEL AS A JEWISH DEMOCRATIC STATE: HOW TO EDUCATE?

A JEWISH AND DEMOCRATIC STATE: BETWEEN PARADOX AND HARMONY

Yaakov Malkin

A Jewish and Democratic State: Paradox and Harmony

Rachel Elijor

Judaism and Democracy — The Private Domain and Public Responsibility

Azmi Bishara

Religion and Democracy

David Kretzmer

A Jewish and Democratic State: Paradox and Harmony

Menachem Elon

Israel as a Jewish and Democratic State: How to Educate

CAN THERE BE INTEGRATION BETWEEN STATE LAW AND HALAKHA?

Naftali Rothenberg

Can State Constitution and Halakhic Constitution Coexist? Is a Halakhic State Possible?

Shmuel Jakobovits

Two Ideologies — Yet Still One People

Eva Etzioni Halevy

Halakhic State or Split Identity? A Sociological Study

Yehoshua Porath

The State Does Not Need Halakha

Amnon Shapira

Can State Constitution and Halakhic Constitution Coexist?

BEING AN ARAB CITIZEN IN A JEWISH AND DEMOCRATIC STATE

Adel Manna

Being an Arab Citizen in a Jewish and Democratic State: Remarks and Insights

Khaled Abu Asba

Being an Arab Citizen in a Jewish and Democratic State: Doubts and Reservations

Alouph Hareven

Being an Arab Citizen in Israel

Salman Natur

Israel as a State of all of its Citizens

Hala Espanioli

A Jewish and Democratic State — But is it Really?